Bhagwan Parashuram Temple located in the holy town of Trimbakeshwar, Maharashtra.

Location

The main temple is centrally located at 94, Panch Ali Road, Trimbakeshwar Town, Nashik District, Maharashtra (Pin: 422212). It is tucked inside the old, narrow residential lanes of the town, just a short 5 to 10-minute walk from the famous Trimbakeshwar Jyotirlinga Temple.

(Note: There is also an ancient, open paduka/shrine dedicated to Lord Parashuram located at the very summit of the nearby Neel Parvat hill).

How to Get There

- By Road / Bus: Trimbakeshwar is about 28–30 km from Nashik City. State Transport (MSRTC) buses run frequently (every 15 to 30 minutes) from Nashik's Thakkar Bazar (New CBS) bus stand directly to the Trimbakeshwar bus depot. From the bus stand, it is a convenient walk or auto-rickshaw ride into the town lanes.
- By Train: The nearest major railway junction is Nashik Road Railway Station (NK), located approximately 35 km away. Taxis, private cabs, and local buses are easily available outside the station to drop you at Trimbakeshwar.
- By Air: The closest domestic airport is Nashik Airport (Ozar), roughly 50 km away, while the nearest major international airport is Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj International Airport in Mumbai (around 170 km away).

Speciality of this Temple

Unlike most temples across India where Lord Parashuram (the 6th avatar of Lord Vishnu) is depicted as a fierce warrior holding his characteristic sharp battle-axe (Parashu), this temple has a highly unusual iconographic presentation. Here, he is worshipped in a remarkably gentle, serene form known as Bal Parashuram—a peaceful divine child.

Additionally, the temple functions actively as a Veda Pathshala (Gurukul). Visitors can regularly hear young students chanting ancient Vedic mantras echo through the corridors, adding a profound meditative quality to the atmosphere.

History and Legends

- The Legend: According to local lore, after executing his vows to rid the world of corrupt, tyrannical Kshatriya kings to protect the innocent, Lord Parashuram felt an immense heaviness and sorrow in his heart from the relentless warfare. Seeking purification and absolute spiritual peace, he traveled to the sacred Sahyadri ranges at Trimbakeshwar. He climbed the Neel Parvat hill and underwent intense penance. Pleased with his devotion, the Mother Goddesses descended, wiped away his sorrow, and completely dissolved his anger, leaving him with an eternal, child-like inner peace.
- History: While ancient shrines in the area suffered damage during centuries of historical conflicts, local devotees established this current wooden structure roughly 125 years ago to restore the town's spiritual connection to Parashuram. In 1939, a prominent local jeweler undertook extensive restoration work to preserve and fortify its exquisite woodwork.

Architecture

The temple is a classic, living specimen of the traditional Maharashtrian "Wada" style architecture (a fortified courtyard home layout). It is primarily a wooden wonder featuring a central open courtyard, beautiful antique balconies, intricately carved wooden pillars, and cool wooden floors. The sanctuary is designed to maximize natural ventilation and acoustic resonance for Vedic chanting.

Main Deity and Subdeities

- Main Deity: The sanctum houses a beautifully crafted, peaceful idol of Bal Parashuram. He is depicted with four arms, wearing a radiant golden crown, and holding a mace (gada) rather than an axe, emphasizing his tranquil demeanor.
- Subdeities: Being embedded within the holy landscape of Trimbakeshwar, the complex honors the broader traditional pantheon with smaller shrines and imagery nearby dedicated to Lord Shiva and the Holy Trinity (Brahma, Vishnu, and Mahesh).

Daily Rituals, Poojas, and Charges

- Timings: The temple remains open for devotees daily from 7:00 AM to 7:00 PM (sometimes extending until 9:00 PM depending on the season).
- Morning Aarti: 7:00 AM
- Evening Aarti: 7:00 PM

- Charges: There is no entry fee or mandatory charge for general darshan. Basic offerings (flowers, coconut) can be bought externally, but the temple trust does not levy structured commercial fees for standard daily viewings.

Special Poojas and Charges

As the temple is deeply linked to the local Vedic pathshala, special prayers, Abhishekams, and specific readings of texts (like the Parashuram Charitra or peace invocations) can be arranged through the resident priests. The charges for these depend directly on the materials required and the number of pandits participating.

(Note: If you intend to perform massive generational rituals like Narayan Nagabali, Kalsarp Shanti, or Tripindi Shradh, those are explicitly conducted by authorized Tamrapatradhari Pandits at the main Kushavarta Tirth / Trimbakeshwar Shiva Temple premises rather than inside this residential Wada temple).

Festivals Celebrated

- Akshaya Tritiya: This is the most significant annual festival here, celebrated with grand pomp as it marks Parashuram Jayanti (the birth anniversary of Lord Parashuram). The idol is specially adorned, and massive communal feasts and continuous Vedic recitations take place.
- Mahashivratri & Guru Purnima: Given the avatar's role as an eternal disciple and a devotee of Shiva, these days see a major influx of locals and students offering specialized prayers.

Facilities for Devotees & Accommodation

- Inside the Temple: The facilities are minimalist. You can sit quietly on the wooden floors to meditate. There is no dedicated cloakroom or large baggage storage area inside.
- Accommodation: The Parashuram temple itself does not run a dedicated lodging house. However, because it sits right next to the central Jyotirlinga, pilgrims can stay at the official Shivprasad Bhakta Niwas operated by the Shree Trimbakeshwar Devasthan Trust, which offers highly affordable multi-bed rooms, lifts, and hot water facilities. Scores of private hotels, dharamshalas, and homestays line the outer rim of the town.

Do's and Don'ts

- Do remove your footwear before entering the wooden courtyard.
- Do maintain strict silence or speak in whispers; remember that young pupils are actively studying and memorizing scriptures in the corridors.
- Do put your mobile phones on completely silent mode.
- Don't carry large luggage or bulky backpacks inside, as the approach lanes and temple walkways are physically restrictive.

- Don't worry about photography restrictions—basic photography of the architecture is generally permitted, though it is respectful to ask before photographing the students or the inner sanctum during a live ritual.

- Lodging Options: Hotel Vedant, Hotel Sai Anand, and various budget resorts dot the Nashik-Trimbakeshwar highway just outside the crowded old town zone.

Donation Info & Contact Contact Details

Because this temple functions heavily as an educational Gurukul within the residential Panch Ali locality, general funds are utilized for maintenance and supporting the young Vedic scholars.

- To ensure your contributions go to authentic channels, donations can be enquired into directly upon arrival at the temple's inner desk.
- For broader religious bookings and town administration, the central body is the Shri Trimbakeshwar Devasthan Trust (Public Trust No. A-405), located near the main Jyotirlinga complex. They can be reached via their official online portal (trimbakeshwartrust.com), where online booking for accommodation (Bhaktniwas) and general trust donations are securely processed.

Any Other Info

Critical Parking Warning: The temple is situated in an old residential quarter of town with exceedingly narrow paths. There is absolutely zero parking space available at the temple site, even for two-wheelers. If you are driving a private vehicle, you must leave it at the designated central municipal public parking lots on the periphery of Trimbakeshwar town and walk the final distance into Panch Ali.

About Shree Parashuram Mandir

Tucked away in the narrow lanes of Trimbakeshwar, you will find a stunning temple built in the traditional Maharashtrian “Wada” (courtyard home) style. It features beautiful antique balconies and intricately carved wooden pillars.

But the most unique thing about this temple is the idol itself! In most places, Lord Parashuram is shown as an angry warrior holding a sharp axe. Here, he is worshipped as a peaceful child—Bal Parashuram—wearing a glowing golden crown. When you visit, you can sit quietly on the cool wooden floors, close your eyes, and meditate while listening to the magical sound of young students chanting ancient mantras in the corridors.

Why is Lord Parashuram So Peaceful Here?

Long, long ago, Lord Parashuram fought many fierce battles to stop cruel kings and protect innocent people. Even though he saved the world, all that fighting left his heart feeling very heavy and sad.

To clean his soul and find true peace, he traveled to the holy mountains of Trimbakeshwar. He climbed high up on the Neel Parvat mountain, sat completely still, and meditated for a very long time. Finally, the Mother Goddesses came down from the sky. They smiled at him, blessed him, and wiped away all his sadness. His anger was gone, replaced by pure, childlike peace.

A 125-Year-Old Wooden Wonder

Over the centuries, many ancient shrines in this holy area were sadly lost or broken during old wars. But about 125 years ago, loving devotees wanted to bring Lord Parashuram's happy, peaceful energy back to the people. So, they built this beautiful wooden temple right in the middle of town! Years later, in 1939, a kind local jeweler lovingly repaired and rebuilt the woodwork. Because of his care, this special temple still stands strong today, wrapping every visitor in its peaceful energy..

Nashik Road Railway Station (NK)

- Distance & Time: ~35 km (1 to 1.5 hours)

How to Reach & Important Alerts :

- Best Option (Bus | ₹45–₹60): Catch a direct MSRTC bus from the station or Thakkar Bazar (every 15–30 mins). It drops you just a 30 minute from the Parashuram Mandir.
- Shared Taxis (~₹100): Available outside, but avoid negotiating with private cab drivers at the main exit as they frequently overcharge, upsell, and argue.
- Ola/Uber Issues: App cabs cannot pick you up inside the station. You can book them, but you must walk 5 to 7 minutes outside to the Ambedkar Statue (near the petrol pump) to actually get in your cab. Note: Do not rely completely on this, as local drivers often harass app drivers and force cancellations.

FAQs:

Can I take photos or bring bags inside?

Photography is allowed! You can take beautiful pictures of the 125-year-old wood carvings. However, there is no place to store bags, and the temple is actively used as a school for students learning mantras, so please carry only small bags and keep your phones on silent.

Is this the same Parashuram temple that is on the mountain?

No, there are two different spots! This is the easy-to-reach wooden temple located in the town center. The other spot is an ancient, open shrine located at the very top of the Neel Parvat hill.

Where exactly is the Parashuram Mandir in Trimbakeshwar?

It is located at 94, Panch Ali Road, hidden inside the narrow old city lanes. It is a short 5 to 10-minute walk from the main Trimbakeshwar Jyotirlinga Temple.

Why is the Parashuram idol here different?

Instead of a fierce warrior with an axe, this temple worships Bal Parashuram, a peaceful, four-armed divine child wearing a golden crown and carrying a mace.

What is the best time to visit this specific temple?

Early mornings are best to hear the students chanting Vedic mantras. The biggest yearly festival is Akshay Tritiya, which celebrates Lord Parashuram's birthday.

Is parking available near the Panch Ali temple?

No. Because it is located in the dense, historic lanes of Panch Ali, there is zero parking space. You must use the main Trimbakeshwar public parking lots and walk.
